PROF. HARRIS TO BE TRIED FOR MURDER

School Principal Will Plead Self-Defense in Killing of Thompson.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] WARRENTON, VA., September 27.—With public interest at fever heat, Professor J. D. Harris, principal of the Warrenton High School, to-morrow will be placed on trial for shooting William A. Thomason assessed to the Warrenton High School, to-morrow will be placed on trial for shooting will be placed on that william A. Thompson, associate editor William A. Thompson, associate editor of the Warrenton Virginian, on April

24, last,
Thompson was shot on the streets of this town and died the next day in a Washington hospital. Self-defense will be the plea entered by Harris. The case will be tried here before Judge Edward S. Turner, of the Fauquier Circuit Court. The shooting was the result of a series of difficulties between the two men. Thompson was tween the two men. Thompson was half owner of the Warrenton Virginian a weekly newspaper, which opposed Harris's candidacy for the office of Superintendent of Schools for Fau-quier county. In this and other matquier county. In this and other matters a bitter feeling existed between the two men, it is alleged, and some time before the tragedy they had become involved in a fist fight.

The immediate cause of the shooting, according to eyewitnesses, was an attack on Harris by Thompson following the making of alleged threats by Thompson an hour or two earlier in the day. Harris opened fire upon Thompson as Thompson approached him on the main street of the town. him on the main street of the town. Thompson was a native of Tau-quier county and had been identified with Warrenton all his life. Harris is a North Carolinian and had been in Warrenton only a few years.

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

THIS is the caution applied to the public announcement of Castoria that has been manufactured under the supervision of Chas. H. Fletcher for over 30 years—the genuine Castoria. We respectfully call the attention of fathers and mothers when purchasing Castoria to see that the wrapper bears his signature in black. When the wrapper is removed the same signature appears on both sides of the bottle in red. Parents who have used Castoria for their little ones in the past years need no warning against counterfeits and imitations, but our present duty is to call the attention of the younger generation to the great danger of introducing into their families spurious medicines.

It is to be regretted that there are people who are now engaged in the nefarious business of putting up and selling all sorts of substitutes, or what should more properly be termed conterfeits, for medicinal preparations not only for adults, but worse yet, for children's medicines. It therefore devolves on the mother to scrutinize closely what she gives her child. Adults can do that for themselves but the child has to rely on the mother's watchfulness. Letters from Prominent Druggists

"TOODLES" THINKS IT HUGE JOKE

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] CINCINNATI, OHIO, September 27.—It does not often happen that an ordinary, every-day runaway dog is so expensive to a big railroad corporation as was "Toodles" to the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company here to-day. "Toodles" is a castaway St. Bernard. He has fleas, the mange. here to-day. "Toolles" is a castaway St. Bernard. He has fleas, the mange, distemper, and there are some who say that he has an enlargement of the liver from being overfed. Well, early this afternoon "Toodles" left his usual haunts in the freight yards across the river and went scallying about in the Chesapeake and Ohio yards. Just as he was running across the main tracks an engine and four heavy freight cars came down the grade. But "Toodles" didn't care. He stopped, looked up at the engine and just stood there. The engineer happens to know all about his history, and for fear that he would run the dog down and kill him, he pulled the valve and brought the little train to a dead stop. Then "Toodles" went on. But three of the cars were ditched, their doors smashed, the contents scattered about and the engine was deralled. Officials say it will cost almost $2,000 to get those cars back on the track, to get the engine right and to pay for the goods which were destroyed. "Toodles" thinks it was a huge joke.

or the paddic passes from tendent father to merciless persecutor, who must keep up "the traditions of the college."

A familiar figure that you will see every year until college walls are crumbled is the awkward, fearsome, gawky youth with baggy trousers, who has come from some far away place to drink at the "Pierian Spring," as the old-time orator called the college. He breaks anything he can get his hands on, and is the personification of confusion. He feels that the $0,000,000 people of the United States, with flere and glaring eyes, are watching every move he makes, and when he stands outside of the president's office with a host of other green ones he feels that rather than go before the august head of the institution he would obey the summons of the angel Gabriel himself. He spends the money he was going to use for a present to Susie in subscriptions to various organizations, some of which exist and some of which have never existed but in the profitable imagination of the college green goods men. He is invited to join the most select fraternity, Kappa Omiloro Betta, pays his initiation fee, and is initiated in enthusiastic and bruising style; only to find that he is the dupe of the upper gods.

His letters home look as if they had taken a salt bath. He writes back that he had rather hee corn than suffer such treatment at the hands of his overlords. He is conspicuously abent from his room at nights. He causes the price of salve to jump skywards. In November his fend parent will come to see him, and will inquire for willle Hicks, to be met with the question: "Oh, you mean Sport Hicks, don't you?" and presently the gentleman in question will heave into sight, a transformation, with turned-up trousers, a cigarette wandering around in his mouth, a ribbon of many colors woven through his hat crown and a line of slang that would make George Adesick with jealousy.

And still there are some who agree when they observe the freshman emerging from the caterpillar into the gay and glddy butterfly, with the sweet.

REAL ESTATE

No sales were announced in the real estate market yesterday, though it was said that house-renting was still going on apace. The renting season ends, as a rule, about September 1, but it has continued longer this year because many people have been slow in getting houses, and because they have been low in getting out of old houses into new ones.

The season has been more than fairly successful, and it is probable that the agents will not have as many places left on their hands as in former years.
